

GLINHAVEN: FAQs ABOUT MONKS

Glinhaven Monastery drips with sinister eeriness, especially at night when bone-chilling fog rolls in from churning North Shore sea waters. The centuries-old stone structure appears as a hulking ghost in the mist, its walls bloated with history and unspeakable secrets. Yellow light from carriage-style lamps intensify the monastery's forbidding effect, the black-squared globes positioned in four-foot intervals on massive walls which surround the holy nucleus, gazed upon in deadly fear by residents of Glinhaven Village . . .

GLINHAVEN

By Deborah O'Toole

The Glinhaven Monastery was established in 1659, shortly after the village of Glinhaven, Massachusetts was founded by Scottish immigrant Andrew Glinhaven. The monastery became home to an order of Benedictine monks, who for the most part remained out of sight and mind as they went about their daily rituals. Their numbers usually hover around thirty, along with abbots who served long terms over the monastery's four centuries of celebrated history.

But as returning Glinhaven resident Piper Hunt soon discovers, there are also dark secrets hidden at the forbidding Glinhaven Monastery, which may unlock mysteries from her past.

Glinhaven Monastery is home to some thirty-two monks, who belong to the Benedictine order. They are also known as cenobites (those who belong to a monastery and serve under an abbot). In addition, two of the resident monks (Brother William Kerwin and Brother Jonathan Ridpath) are "lay brothers." They have jobs outside the religious community, solely to provide an extra source of income for the monastery.

While Brother Albert Michaels is officially the Sub-Prior and Precentor (third in charge and responsible for writing, respectively) at Glinhaven Monastery, he is also its unofficial public liaison. In addition, he also assists with record-keeping and helps tend to resident patients within its walls. His fellow monks include:

Facts about monks & monasteries.

- ❖ The head of a monastery is usually known as an Abbot (the female equivalent being an Abbess). An Abbot typically serves for a term of eight years and can also be re-elected. He is chosen via secret ballot whereby monks vote for the person they think is best suited to lead the monastery.
- ❖ The term "Monastery" is defined as a building or complex of buildings consisting of living quarters and workplaces of monastic monks or nuns, whether they are part of a community or living alone as hermits. The monastery usually includes a place reserved for prayer which may be a chapel, church or temple, often serving as an oratory as well. A monastery may also be an abbey (under rule of an abbot) or a priory (under rule of a prior), or a hermitage (dwelling of a hermit). Monasteries can be communities of men (monks) or women (nuns).
- ❖ Roman Catholic monastic orders include Canons Regular (Black Canons), Benedictine ("Black Monks" founded by St. Benedict), Cistercian (White Monks), Bridgettine (nuns and monks), Order of Saint Paul the First Hermit, Carthusian hermits, Gilbertines, Passionists, Poor Clares, Carmelite nuns, Premonstratensian canons (White Canons), Tironensian (Grey Monks) and Valliscaulian monks.
- ❖ There are four "types" of monks, including cenobites (those who belong to a monastery under the rule of an abbot); anchorites or hermits (those who have lived in a monastery for a long time and are beyond the first fervor of monastic life); sarabaites (also known as remoboths, these monks live in their own homes, or dwell near cities, and they do not acknowledge any monastic superior or obey definite rule); and gyrovagues (those who spend their entire religious life drifting with no permanent residence or leadership, often staying in different monasteries for a few days at a time, relying on the charity and hospitality of others).
- ❖ Most monastic orders use the term "monastery" or "priory," while the term "convent" is used by friars from the Latin conventus (Italian: convent; French: couvent), which means "gathering place." Franciscans rarely use the term "monastery," preferring to call their house a "friary."
- ❖ In order to become a monk, a man must be single, Catholic and between the ages of 20-50.
- ❖ The "monastic vow" is a promise freely made by an individual to give his or her life to God by living the monastic life.
- ❖ Benedictines take solemn vows of celibacy, obedience, poverty, stability and fidelity to the monastic way of life.
- ❖ Those desiring to join a monastery must first become a "postulant." Postulancy is a trial period where the individual stays in the monastery for three to six months, living and working alongside the resident monks to gauge whether monastic life is for him. If so, he becomes a Novice and is "clothed" with a habit. The Novitiate may last anywhere from one to two years; once complete, the Novice is invited to make his vows for three years or more. If all goes well, he then makes life-long vows. Some monks go on to be ordained as Catholic Priests as well.

- ❖ The monastic day is structured with six church services, which monks must attend. The first is Matins at dawn, followed by Lauds. After morning work, there is a short time for Midday prayer. Mass is in late afternoon, followed by Vespers in the evening and lastly Compline at night.
- ❖ A monk's day is well balanced between times of prayer, monastic labor and rest.
- ❖ Various positions of responsibly within a monastery can include the Abbot (leader), Almoner (manages alms for the poor), Cantor (leads the choir), Cellarer (in charge of baking and brewing), Chamberlain (tends to day-to-day essentials, such as laundry and cleaning); Circuitor (in charge of discipline), Hosteller (looks after visitors, also known as guest-master); Infirmarian (in charge of the infirmary), Kitchener (in charge of the kitchen; answers to the cellarer); Lay Brother (monk who has an outside job in support of the monastery), Lector (reads lessons in the chapel or church), Librarian (manages the books in a monastery), Novice-Master (senior monk who supervises novices), Precentor (takes care of writing in the monastery), Prior (second in charge; Abbot's assistant), Sacrist (keeps tabs on the monastery's treasures, such as religious relics), Sub-Prior (third in charge, behind the Abbot and Prior), and the Treasurer (supervises accounts, along with jewels, ornaments and vestments).
- ❖ Buddhist monks are known as Bhikkhu or Bhikṣu, while female equivalents are Bhikkhuni. Buddhist monks are focused on spiritual practice, meditation and simplicity, and the desire to attain Nirvana.
- ❖ Some of the more well-known monasteries include Alcobaca (Portugal), Belmont Abbey (North Carolina), Buckfast Abbey (England), Glenstal Abbey (Ireland), Gradac (Serbia), Gregorio in Mount Atos, Greece; Madonna del Sasso (Switzerland), Melk Abbey (Austria), Meteora (Greece), Monte Cassino Abbey (Italy), Montserrat (Spain), Ngaphechaung (Burma), Ostrog (Montenegro), Popa Taungkalat (Burma), Rila (Bulgaria), St. Catherine's (Mount Sinai), St. Michael's (Ukraine), San Lorenzo de El Escorial (Spain), Sumela (Greece), Taktshang (Tiger's Nest) in Bhutan; Tengboche (Nepal), Troitse-Sergieva Lavra (Russia), Yumbulagang (Tibet), among hundreds of others.
